CEIBS AND FLETCHER COORDINATED MBA/MALD PROGRAM

A Unique Opportunity at a Unique Point in History

These are exceptional times, when the rise of China is changing the rules of global business, and also is dramatically changing the shape of international politics. The Coordinated MBA/MALD between CEIBS and The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, located just outside Boston, is a unique program at a unique point in history. The program will allow you to live and study the most pressing issues facing our world in business, economics, and politics, from the perspective of two of the world's great superpowers.

The Coordinated Program is intended to prepare you for careers focusing on international affairs, international management, and business. It is designed for those professionals who seek management responsibilities in international corporations, global financial institutions, and international economic and development institutions, as well as government and nongovernmental agencies. By combining the excellence and traditions of two schools from different continents, you will gain a broad perspective and will become equipped to meet the challenges of an ever more complex, interdependent, and globalized world.
Why MBA/MALD?

The CEBS-Fletcher Coordinated Degree Program (MBA/MALD) gave me the best possible opportunity of studying various aspects of international trade from both the business and the regulatory/policy viewpoint. This program is uniquely positioned to equip students with the skill set to be effective leaders in the multinational business environment. The program provides a strong foundation of working with and understanding multi-cultural teams - a skill that proves invaluable in real-time business situations. Overall, this program is undoubtedly the key differentiating factor between students becoming good managers vs. them becoming great managers!
